This week we have spent planning our new topic of Falmouth and the past (the Packet Ships in particular) and setting up our Florist role play area.

We have started to learn our non-fiction storytelling piece about Falmouth's Packet Ships and many of the children drew atmospheric chalk pictures of tall ships on stormy seas.

Meanwhile, we have created posters advertising the Florist, learnt how to serve customers and fill in order forms and investigated the flowers and plants (real and silk) included in the role play area. Yesterday we were lucky enough to have Angie Christophers, from Riverside Flowers in Mawnan, pop in and talk to us about being a florist and she showed us how to create a hand-tied posy; it was a super experience and the children loved it!
